1. A representative of General Francisco FRANCO reportedly called on Manuel PORTELA Valladares in early January 1949, for the purpose of persuading the former Prime Minister of the Spanish Republic to return to Spain. PORTELA stipulated that all his property, confiscated by the Franco Government, must be returned to him. According to the informant, the government was willing to return some but not all of the property, and the negotiations for PORTELA'S return to Spain have reached a standstill at this point.
